Living roadmap of 6 or 12 months

This is what a 12-month living roadmap looks like. Sprint length and leadership sessions are set when we agree on it.

ILLUSTRATIVE EXAMPLE UX HEALTH SCORE

Where your platform loses users today

We measure the flows that drive conversion and mark every friction point. Every month it is measured again against the baseline.

Each stage

Is a step of a key flow of your platform, measured with telemetry.

Each mark

Is a point where users get stuck, make mistakes or drop off.

Every month

It is measured again: that is how you know whether each improvement moved the indicator.

A generic flow to show the format. Yours comes from your platform’s data.

ILLUSTRATIVE EXAMPLE QUARTERLY ROADMAP

What the squad does and in what order

Each initiative is ranked by its impact on conversion, operations or technical debt against the effort it takes.

INITIATIVE	IMPACT	EFFORT	WHEN
Simplify payment, where most users drop off	●●●	●○○	This sprint
Update dependencies with vulnerabilities	●●●	●●○	This sprint
A/B test of the sign-up	●●○	●○○	This quarter
Refactor the inventory module	●●○	●●●	This quarter
First-level support agent	●●●	●●●	Next quarter
Conversion dashboard for leadership	●●○	●●○	Next quarter

This sprint
What moves the indicator most or removes a risk, with little effort.

This quarter
Improvements and technical debt planned within the current roadmap.

Next quarter
Confirmed at the next session with your leadership, with what was measured.

Generic initiatives to show the format. Yours come from measuring your platform.

ILLUSTRATIVE EXAMPLE IMPACT REPORT

Every improvement, measured against your baseline

Every month you see how the indicators we agreed on at the start have moved.

Illustrative bars: they show the format, not a client's figures. Your indicators are agreed with you.

What the monthly report brings

1. What the data said.
2. What was done in the month.
3. How the indicators moved.
4. What goes into the next sprint.

EVERY QUARTER

Reprioritize with evidence

You review with the squad what was measured and decide what comes next. The scope adjusts along the way, without waiting for the end of the contract.

Adjust the squad

The squad's mix adjusts to what the roadmap needs: more UX and conversion, more engineering or new AI agents.

WHAT WE NEED FROM YOUR TEAM

- Access to your platform and its data.
- Someone on your side who prioritizes with the squad.
- A session each quarter with your leadership to reprioritize.

How we start

Book a 20-minute call, with no sales commitment, with someone from the technical team. We review your platform and tell you where the squad would start.
